

I think it is wonderful that there is more than just one radio service that gives the weather and traffic updates for cars. My reasoning for saying this is that, AM & FM scribble out on you when you are trying to find the weather and traffic updates on the radio while you are vacationing or even when you are just riding around. So I honestly think that it is better to have XM or any other satellite radio service broadcast these channels, especially when traveling.